ISSUE NO 50.

MARCH 2010

FEBRUARY NEWS FROM THE PARISH COUNCIL

The Council was disappointed with the response from Dartmoor National Park and others we had written to regarding the Teign Valley shoot, but are grateful to those horse-riders, walkers and residents who have taken time to contact us. We are still pressing for a meeting of those interested parties to try and resolve the problem.

Highway matters take a lot of our time and this month is no exception!! Our list of potholes is getting longer, but to give credit where it is due, many temporary repairs have been done.

We would be interested to know if anyone has experienced problems since the street lights have been turned off in the small hours. We are formulating a plan for a request to Devon County Council for the siting of Salt Bins instead of bags and thanks to those who have contacted us regarding this subject.

Parking in Knowle Lane Drewsteignton has cropped up again. Please use the allocated bays for parking. We are writing to the owners of the holiday cottages seeking their help and have asked WPC Wilson to monitor the situation and to take positive action against those car drivers who choose to cause an obstruction. It's quite simple - if a Fire appliance cannot get through, it is an offence.

We have also heard that no money is available to cut back the undergrowth at Venton Lay-By, so if the fly tipping continues, please inform Cllr Sue Power and West Devon Borough Council. Talking about money, we have been told Dartmoor National Park will not be contributing to the upkeep of the toilets in Drewsteignton, so the whole cost will now be borne by the Parish.

At Whiddon Down an alternative plan has been discussed relating to the closure of Turnpike and Chapel Hill. Cllr Graham Hester will be contacting residents to canvass their opinions. Some news about the new crossing highlighted in the Parish Plan at the bus stops - it is hoped it will be included in Devon County Council's budget for this year. Again at Whiddon Down the junction with the A30 is the subject of a survey to monitor "near misses" and accidents in the hope of persuading the Highways Agency to make some improvements. (You can help by letting us know the date, time and incident you witness).

On the subject of Planning, we made no comment on the application to replace a shed at Coombe Hall. The Council's responsibility is to make recommendations to the Dartmoor National Park. We either support or object with valid planning reasons, or make no comment, leaving the decision to the DNP.

Hot off the press: West Devon Borough Council has negotiated a new contract with regard to refuse collection, and new arrangements will take place after 1st April.

There will be a much improved recycling collection and other collections, but WDRC will be contacting all householders with the full details in due course.

Our next meeting is at Whiddon Down, 7.30pm Monday 15th March. Advance notice: the Annual Parish Meeting where you can have your say will be on Monday 26th April at Drewsteignton - full details next month.

Parish Profile...The Young Ones

The Parish Profile has been an occasional feature of the Parish Post for some time now, but while we have the crack team of Hope (cub reporter) and Viva (photographer) available, we're going to focus for a time on the youth of the Parish. If any other young people fancy trying their hand at doing a Profile, or have any other ideas for articles, please get in touch.

Morenews from Morecare

The Morecare Association continues to thrive in the various parishes which we support. Last year we carried out over 500 jobs and we are very well supported by a group of about 60 volunteers. Feedback from those we help is very positive but we cannot sit back and be complacent.

What we can do

Morecare aims to help in simple ways such as shopping for those who may be temporarily housebound; driving someone without a car to an appointment; visiting someone who needs company or something read for them. Many in our community already receive help but there are some people who do not know as many as others and sometimes find it difficult to get help easily when they need it most. The Morecare telephone number is 0791 485 3726. Please leave a message if necessary and the organiser will get back to you.

New ideas

We are keen to meet the needs of those who need our support. We do get some suggestions such as helping those with poor or no sight but I am sure there are other ideas you may have. To this end, Volunteers will be asking those that we help if there are any services that we can provide that would make life easier for those that might be struggling. We are open to all ideas so please let a Volunteer know or write to me, the Chairman of Morecare at Linden Spinney, Chagford, Devon, TQ13 8JF or leave a message on the Morecare telephone, 0791 485 3726.

Meldon Seat

Morecare has had a very kind donation specifically to enable us to erect a seat at the base of the path that leads to the top of Meldon, close to the old golf course clubhouse. The purpose is to provide somewhere for those unable to get to the top to sit and admire the view and take in the air.

There are ongoing discussions taking place with the Dartmoor National Park and we hope it will not be too long before the job is completed.

The Veg Sowing Season Has Arrived

Peter Clements runs a business from home in Drewsteignton, all about helping people to grow their own veg.

It's the start of March, and we're finally starting to see an improvement in the weather. Snowdrops and crocuses have begun appearing in abundance, and you can even see the change in the trees. Just last week I was walking along the top of the Teign Valley and there was an incredible purple-pink hue over the trees on the other side.

My neighbour informed me this comes from new spring buds emerging from last years bark. The French, rather charmingly, call it the 'rose du bois'. With all these strong signals from nature that spring is on its way, it's time to start sowing some veg. If you've got a heated greenhouse or fancy using a windowsill propagator (inside) now's the ideal time to sow slow-growing, frost-tender plants like tomatoes, chillies, cucumbers and aubergines. Salad leaves and lettuces can also be started off in the greenhouse too. Modules or gutters are quick to use, and make transplanting outside in four-five weeks' time nice and easy. Outside, onion sets can go in and seed potatoes later in the month. It's best to chit seed potatoes first, otherwise you can end up with lots of small potatoes. Sow hardy annual seeds like radishes, peas, broad beans and beetroot outside now too. If you're sowing outdoors during March and April it's well worth considering using some horticultural fleece. There's lots of daylight now – days are as long as they are in September - but the ground is cold, and frosts are common. A sheet of fleece loosely laid over your seeds/plants will help speed up germination and growth a lot. Spread it out and hold it down with stones, or old milk cartons filled up with water to avoid tearing, and if you're thinking about planting some new fruit bushes, now's your last chance to get them in!

Seeds, growing equipment and advice are available on our website seedtoplate.co.uk. Seeds are also for sale in the Drewsteignton Post Office.

Sam Peirce resides in Exeter and has been a regular columnist in a number of regional newspapers. Never shy of expressing an opinion, she writes about all manner of things but is happiest when ranting about the things that impinge on her otherwise harmonious existence. Every month, she will share her thoughts with us in The Parish Post.

The never-ending story...

I've decided that I really hate soap operas. I was round my mum's for a visit and she rudely insisted on watching Coronation Street followed by Eastenders. As I was only there for an hour, not a lot of social interaction went on but I did find out about Gail and her husband's hassle with loan sharks and who killed Archie, whoever the heck he is. It might have something to do with living in Drewsteignton all those years. Most of us who inhabit or who have inhabited the place are aware that we are actually living in a soap opera and the Parish Post is equivalent to a monthly fanzine. I gave up Eastenders a long time ago because I was finding it cynical and depressing with repetitive storylines and one-dimensional characters. Every time someone turned up at Beale's café in need of sustenance, I got fed up of the sound of my own voice imploring them to go home and make a coffee/bacon sarnie/cheese roll as they would save themselves a fortune. I know they're entertainment, loved by masses of people keen to escape to a fantasy land where people are having a miserable time, but watching Eastenders, or indeed any other soap, is just like smoking, drinking, gambling or any other vice. It takes up time and is highly addictive so if you never start, you're never going to know what you're missing. I have been trying to get my mum to spend her time more productively and recently decided to chuck some statistics at her. Eastenders started 25 years ago, broadcasting just two half-hour episodes a week. Some time around half-way between then and now, the BBC decided on doubling the broadcasting time, with a total of four half-hour episodes. You probably know where I am going with this ...

Yes – I have done 'the math' and worked out that if you had watched every episode since its inception, you would have spent 1,950 hours worrying about the lives of a bunch of fictional people with fictional lives in a fictional place.

That's a total of 81¼ days or nearly 12 weeks or three months without getting off that sofa, sleeping or going to the toilet.

The trouble is she doesn't just watch Eastenders. She watches Coronation Street and Emmerdale, too. It's probably not advisable to work out the total time she's been glued to the screen. She could probably get half her life back.

I feel like a real global correspondent and am filing from Washington. Recently, I have been lucky to have been awarded a Nuffield Scholarship (www.nuffieldscholar.org.uk), which gives me the opportunity to travel in the next 18 months and present a paper that will give some solutions to increasing the number of new entrants in farming.

This week I am with a group of leading agriculturalists, including farmers, a journalist, fish farmers, bee-keepers and policy-makers from around the world.

Although it sounds like a jolly, it has been intense work getting to grips with the global situation in our industry. Much thought is being given to the population prediction of 9 billion by 2050, volatility in the oil market and climate change. Although it is hard to compare our small farms in Devon with Australian farms that are 45,000 acres, we still have very similar worries of where the next generation of farmers are coming from.

News from the Castle

Well, what a chilly January and February we've had, with the Castle effectively cut off to all but 4x4s for several days! In spite of the weather it was good to see so many local residents, particularly the younger members of the community, making use of the grounds – with sledges and snowmen much in evidence. In fact the remnants of one snowman can still be seen by the croquet lawn.

To help beat the cold, a new wood-burner has been installed in the gardener's workshop, replacing an old, electric fan heater. As a result, the gardening team are now lovely and warm and are able to effectively dry their wet clothes. By replacing the electric heater with the wood-burner, we have further reduced our carbon emissions and our reliance on fossil fuels. It even came in handy for making pancakes on Shrove Tuesday!

While I'm on the subject of garden news, our previous Head Gardener, Andrew Midgley, left in January to take over the management of the Trust's gardens in the Torbay area. We are now looking forward to welcoming our new Head Gardener, John Rippin, who will be joining us in April. John is currently the Deputy Head Gardener at Hidcote Manor Garden, Gloucestershire, and will bring a wealth of horticultural experience and expertise to the team.

As many of you will know, a car parking area was created at the top of the drive to provide hard standing for larger vehicles during the re-development of the Visitor Centre. While this has proved very useful over the past year, it was only ever intended to be a short-term solution and the time has now come for us to reinstate this area. We are currently planning the work required and will post notices to keep you advised of progress. We will all miss that little car park, but are looking forward to seeing that spectacular view across the Teign Valley to Dartmoor restored to its former, uninterrupted glory.

February half-term was busy despite the cold weather, and the team are all now geared up and ready for the year ahead. Let's hope it will be a bumper one, like last year! It's fantastic to see so many volunteers returning this year and we are delighted to be welcoming some new faces, too.

So, as we re-open, is there anything in particular that you should look out for? Well, how about the following to get you started?:

To celebrate the start of a new season, the National Trust is holding a 'Bonus Time' weekend on 20th and 21st March during which you will get free entry to our car parks and pay for entrance to properties. So, if you haven't visited us for a while, why not come along to say hello and see what's new at Castle Drogo. We'd love to see you here.

Many of you will be pleased to hear that the breakfasts are back! From 13th March you will be able to get a full English breakfast for £6.95, or a bacon and egg bap for £3.50, (with vegetarian and children's options available). These will be on sale from 8.30am until 10.30am every day until the end of October. Finally, as mentioned in last month's Parish Post, we will be holding another Drogo Quiz night on Wednesday 21st April. Once again the evening will kick off at 7pm, with Sausage & Mash (or a vegetarian alternative) available for £5 and, of course, there will be a bar. Paula will be our fiendish questioner and the quiz will start at 8pm. Each team can have up to six members and there will be a charge of £2 per person, with half of the proceeds going into the prize fund. Be warned, this time there will be a booby prize! If you would like to join us, please book your place by contacting Paula by e-mail (paula.clarke@nationaltrust.org.uk) or by phone on 01647 434114 (if she's not at her desk please leave a message including your name, your contact details and the number of places you would like to book).

Finally, as you know, David and Kate have now moved on to pastures new, in Herefordshire. I am stepping in, on secondment, as interim Property Manager until June, when the new General Manager starts. I've been working for the National Trust for four years and come to you from Lanhydrock, Cornwall. I'm very much looking forward to my time at Drogo.

Do come and see us during the Bonus Time weekend!

Police Notice

I would like to remind people NOT to give out any bank or credit card details to unknown persons over the phone, even if they claim to be from your bank or credit card company. YOUR BANK AND CREDIT CARD COMPANIES WILL NOT PHONE YOU AND ASK FOR SUCH INFORMATION.

It has come to notice that telephone type scams are on the increase with people claiming to be from bank/credit card companies asking you to confirm your card details, informing you that there appears to be a problem with your account and asking in the case of credit cards for the three security numbers on the rear of the card -- this enables them to access your account and remove money.

If you are at all unsure if callers are genuine, contact your bank to confirm this.

Please feel free to contact me if you would like further advice about this subject or if you think you may have been subject to a scam. Call 08452 777 444.
